Happy Holidays!

When you gather with family and friends, seize the opportunity to tell the adults in your life that you're going to college. Whether it's a parent who will cheer you on or a teacher who will guide you through the steps to college, you can't have too much help.

Click on your grade for advice on talking to adults about this important subject:

Seniors

Get Yourself Together

While you're home on break, take the opportunity to get your important documents together. We're not talking about your birth certificate and social security card – we're talking about the documents you'll need to fill out college applications.

These documents include:

- Copies of high school report cards
- List of high school awards and honors, including the dates you won them
- List of high school team and club memberships, and related leadership positions
- List of volunteer activities and work experience, and the skills you learned at each

Put the documents into a folder marked "KnowHow2GO" and add to it during your high school years. Trust us, it'll come in very handy down the road!

Test Prep

Hey, juniors! The holidays are the perfect time to plan your testing schedule for the spring. Taking the tests will keep you ahead of the college preparation process. Plus, it'll help you to learn your strengths and weaknesses – and, ideally, help you do better if you choose to take the tests again.

Below are upcoming SAT and ACT test dates. Before you sign up, check out the Web sites of the colleges and universities you're interested in. Look for their guidelines on which test to take.
